

Cold-Formed Steel Specialty Conference

Student Scholarship Program

On behalf of the Sponsors of the 25th Wei-Wen Yu International Specialty Conference on Cold-Formed Steel Structures (ICCFSS), we are pleased to offer four scholarships, recognizing university students conducting research in cold-formed steel structures and who are enrolled in an academic institution at the time of the conference. Scholarship candidates must be the first author for the conference paper and must make the oral presentation of the paper at the conference. These scholarships are aimed primarily at graduate students, although undergraduate students may also apply.

Student Scholar Award ($1,000)

This award recognizes exceptional scholarship in cold-formed steel structures research. The recipient must have submitted a paper to ICCFSS as first author and must present the paper in-person at the conference. The nomination requires submission of a CV (limited to two pages) and a letter of recommendation, on University letterhead, from the student's academic advisor. The letter is limited to one page, and must include the following:

- names and email addresses of both the student and the advisor;
- brief overview of the student's academic background and activities; and
- description of future academic work to be pursued by the student.

The Student Scholar Award recipient will be selected by the ICCFSS Organizing Committee.

Best Paper Award ($1,000)

This award is presented to the student author of the best paper presented at ICCFSS. The recipient must:

- be in attendance at ICCFSS,
- be the first author of the paper, and
- be the one to deliver the oral presentation.

The Best Paper Award recipient will be selected by the ICCFSS Scientific Committee.

Honorable Mention Awards ($500)

Two award will be granted to the top-ranked runners-up following the Best Paper Award. To receive an Honorable Mention, a student author must also meet the criteria for the Best Paper Award. The ICCFS Scientific Committee will select the Honorable Mention Award recipients.

Thank you to our sponsors!
